Dear Perry,

I've really enjoyed seeing you even if sometimes you are a little vocal. Anyway you are a very quick student I'm sure seeing you had look in your college career

In this Vine

Just as a grape vine must be pruned, cut back, so that it can bear more fruit, so must the vine of the Church be pruned. This year the Church suffered such a cutting back — the death of our beloved Pope Pius XII. For almost twenty years he had guided his flock through a changing world with a wisdom admired even by those not of his faith.

Pope Pius' death left us with a feeling of emptiness — and shock from God's pruning. But though we mourned, we were comforted by the knowledge that our spiritual father had been removed from the stress and turmoil of the world to enjoy the fruit he now should reap.

The pruned grape vine is ugly in its mutilated state, but new and stronger branches, new leaves and new fruit grow where the old have been. Pope Pius XII is dead, but in his place has been chosen a new pope, John XXIII. Mourning robes have been put aside; the coronation of the new pontiff has been celebrated with great splendor.

During the first few months of his reign, Pope John has appointed twenty-three new cardinals, selected new bishops, introduced a number of reforms, and called an ecumenical council, the twenty-first in the past two thousand years. More important, our new shepherd has shown the love and understanding of a father and the prudence of a true leader.

May his reign prove increasingly fruitfull

Our parents, teachers, coaches...

In gratitude for the many years of care and guidance, we, the Senior Class of 1959, dedicate this volume of the Marque to our parents, faculty, and coaches. As the seed is planted, so must it be nourished and pruned in order to bear fruit. Through the years this has been the task of those who have been entrusted with our physical and spiritual well-being.

As the branch is dependent upon the vine for life, so are we dependent upon our parents for the necessities of life. Through their love and sacrifice they have seen to it that we have been given the best in a Catholic education.

Knowledge, combined with grace, bears fruit of highest quality. Our teachers have made accessible to us this knowledge which must nourish our tree of life.

Just as the development of the mind is important, so is development of the body, if we are to be perfectly Christ-like. Through the discipline, co-ordination, and team-work which is learned on the field, our coaches have contributed to our maturity and spirit as Marquette graduates.

Men are like trees: the goodness and flavor of the fruit depends upon the soil in which the trees grow. Our soil is of great quality; by our fruits you shall know us.

FRUIT OF JUSTICE

Meaningful activities integrate religion

It's in the book," Father Kenneth King tells the reverend Charles Hart as he shows him the page as proof

Because of his fallen nature, man has found truth an elusive treasure to hold. We find traces of the search for his lost heritage from the fragmentary histories and literature of the earliest ages up to the well documented periods of more recent times. And, although the centuries' quest was infinitely rewarded in the coming of Our Lord, unenlightened souls have not ceased to find it as elusive as their stone age ancestors. It is for us, guardians of the tree of truth, to let it protect us and enrich our lives so that we may go forth and sow the seed of truth that many may reap the fruit of justice.

"Power" was the key word of the freshmen religion class taught by Sr. Mary Mark, O.S.B. The new Marquette's were again impressed with the omnipotent power of God and made newly aware of the supernatural power given to man through the sacraments and prayer.

The manifestation of loyalty to God and man by the keeping of the Commandments was the theme of the sophomore religion course offered by Rev. Kenneth King.

MIKE MURRAY and Richard Gooch are seen how the students will move to the altar rail in the offertory procession as Margaret MacIsaac and Mary Helen Egan watch attentively. Rita Dickmann and Janet Reis stop a minute before leaving to teach music for the procession to the underclassmen. Seniors initiated and successfully carried off this at school project.

Sr. Mary Bernadine, O.S.B., challenged the juniors with a course in apologetics. They learned how to prove the existence of God, the divinity of Christ, and the authenticity of the claim of the Catholic Church to be the one true church. In studying the life and works of Christ, a comparative study of the Gospels was made.

Under Father William Ross, seniors reached the culmination of four years work with an intensive study of the liturgy, of marriage, and of social justice. Not the least important phase of the year's work was the planning and carrying out of an offertory procession.

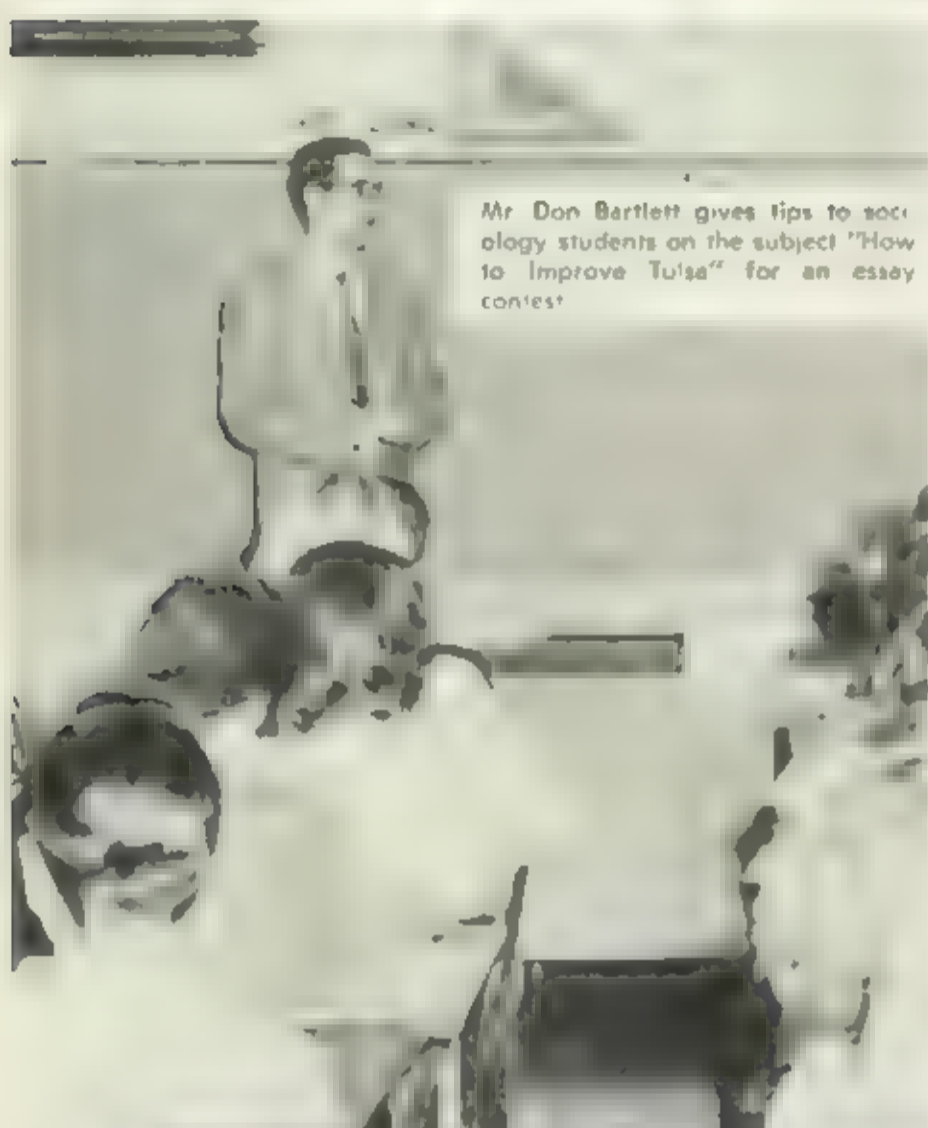

FRESHMEN seen pondering one of Sister Mary Mark's thought-provoking bulletin boards are Jerry Neville, Ken Korshner, Kathy Clark, and Jo Ann Beshara.

FLYNN WIGAL, junior, recites the Advent prayer before Religion III begins.

Significance of history is proved by study

Mr. Don Bartlett gives tips to sociology students on the subject "How to Improve Tulsa" for an essay contest.

Sister M. Imelda, O.S.B., unfolded the vast panorama of man's struggle for improvement, spiritually and materially, from the dawn of civilization to the threshold of the space age in her first year World History Class. Her sophomore students made a specialized study of Modern European history. This included an analysis of current international events which proved to be a source of lively class discussions.

Turning to the New World, Sister Imelda acquainted American History students with the historical development of the government under which they presently live. In sociology, the seniors learned to apply Christian social principles to everyday living.

The seeds of truth planted among men by religion have been seen, in history classes, to grow or die, depending on the quality of the soil in which they fell. Graduates leave their social science studies with the challenge to sow generously that the Vine may produce justice — fruit unto life everlasting.

Mike Quinn points out St. Thomas More to this alert (About face!) ancient history class.

FRUIT OF WISDOM

New knowledge applied to everyday occurrences

acquaints students with mysteries of science.

Study of the natural sciences leads to a more mature understanding of the harmonious complexity and beauty of God's universe. Their intrinsic value and ultimate importance in the high school curriculum derives from the greater understanding and appreciation of the Creator that can be gained through the study of His Creation.

Mrs. Anthony Benish introduced the freshmen to the wonders of the scientific world in her general science class, a survey course of many of the natural sciences.

The study of all living things — plant, animal, and man — was the project of Mrs. Benish's sophomore biology class. The wonders of the microkingdom were revealed by the microscope. Actual experiments enabled students to test and apply their knowledge.

Mrs. Julian Evans took her junior chemistry class into the realm of the atom. Protons, neutrons, alpha rays, and benzene rings were terms that became familiar through usage. The harmony visible in all the universe developed a deeper appreciation in the student for the priceless legacy left in man's care.

Mrs. Evans opened still another horizon for her senior physics class, the world of force. Offering a challenge as new as today's headlines, satellites, rockets, and the prospect of space travel were ready topics of interest. But the realization quickly came that more fundamental concepts had to be mastered before greater ones could be undertaken. Laws of buoyancy, friction, action and reaction were pondered over and digested.

GREG MURRAY looks fearlessly on a difficult geometry problem. On with the demonstration, Greg!

The new emphasis on mathematics instruction throughout the United States has not created any unusual stir in Sister M. Emily's mathematics classes, where thoroughness and accuracy are the rule, not the exception. Students seeking a basic foundation in math are at home in first and second year work, but those qualified advance to the exhilarating atmosphere of logarithms, sines, and three dimensional figures.

To the bewildered freshmen, Algebra I may have seemed impossible at first but x's, y's, graphs, and factoring soon became second nature to them. The second challenge of high school math confronted the Plane Geometry students who used axioms, postulates, and theorems to reach logical conclusions in regard to two dimensional figures.

Algebra II is based on the principles learned in Algebra I but goes deeper into the unknowns x and y, into more complex graphs and factoring methods. In Trigonometry, students have learned how to solve different kinds of triangles and also how to manipulate a slide rule. Solid Geometry, studied the second semester of the senior year, utilizes the student's knowledge of Plane Geometry as he turns to problems in three dimensions.

ANNE LAYMAN, Pete Dixon, Bill Edison and Mary Ann Senger set up the equations for the day's problem in Algebra II class.

The commercial sciences taught by Mrs. D. M. Clark provide another link in the educational chain at Marquette. The business minded Marquette finds his challenge in perfecting practical skills that he knows will prove invaluable to him in the economic world.

In typing class juniors and seniors have acquired manual dexterity and facility in following various forms for letter, files, and the like. Senior girls have been taught to take notes quickly and accurately in shorthand. Bookkeeping students have become acquainted with ledgers and balance sheets.

The accomplished student of commerce is the one who has acquired accuracy, neatness, and speed, he is one who is much in demand in the industrial and professional world.

to study of modern and ancient languages.

Because communication among peoples is of great importance, a knowledge of the rudiments of one language, if not more than one, is an essential part of high school training.

Budding young linguists proved their mettle by their courageous assaults on Latin, French, and Spanish. Sister M. Dolores, O.S.B., directed the attack on Latin I and II, Spanish I and II, and French I, while Sister M. Xavier, O.S.B., led her class against an even thornier opponent, Latin III.

Latin I students proved capable shock troops, struggling with declensions, sentence structure, and vocabulary. The Latin II class found themselves in the middle of the Gallic Wars pitted against no less an adversary than Julius Caesar. Latin III scholars undertook translations of the most noted works of the great classicists, Cicero and Sallust.

Spanish I and II classes were engaged primarily with conversational usage but took time out for a Spanish fiesta twice during the year. The "camp cook," Mrs. Julian Evans, a faculty member, proved a master at cooking "estilo espanol."

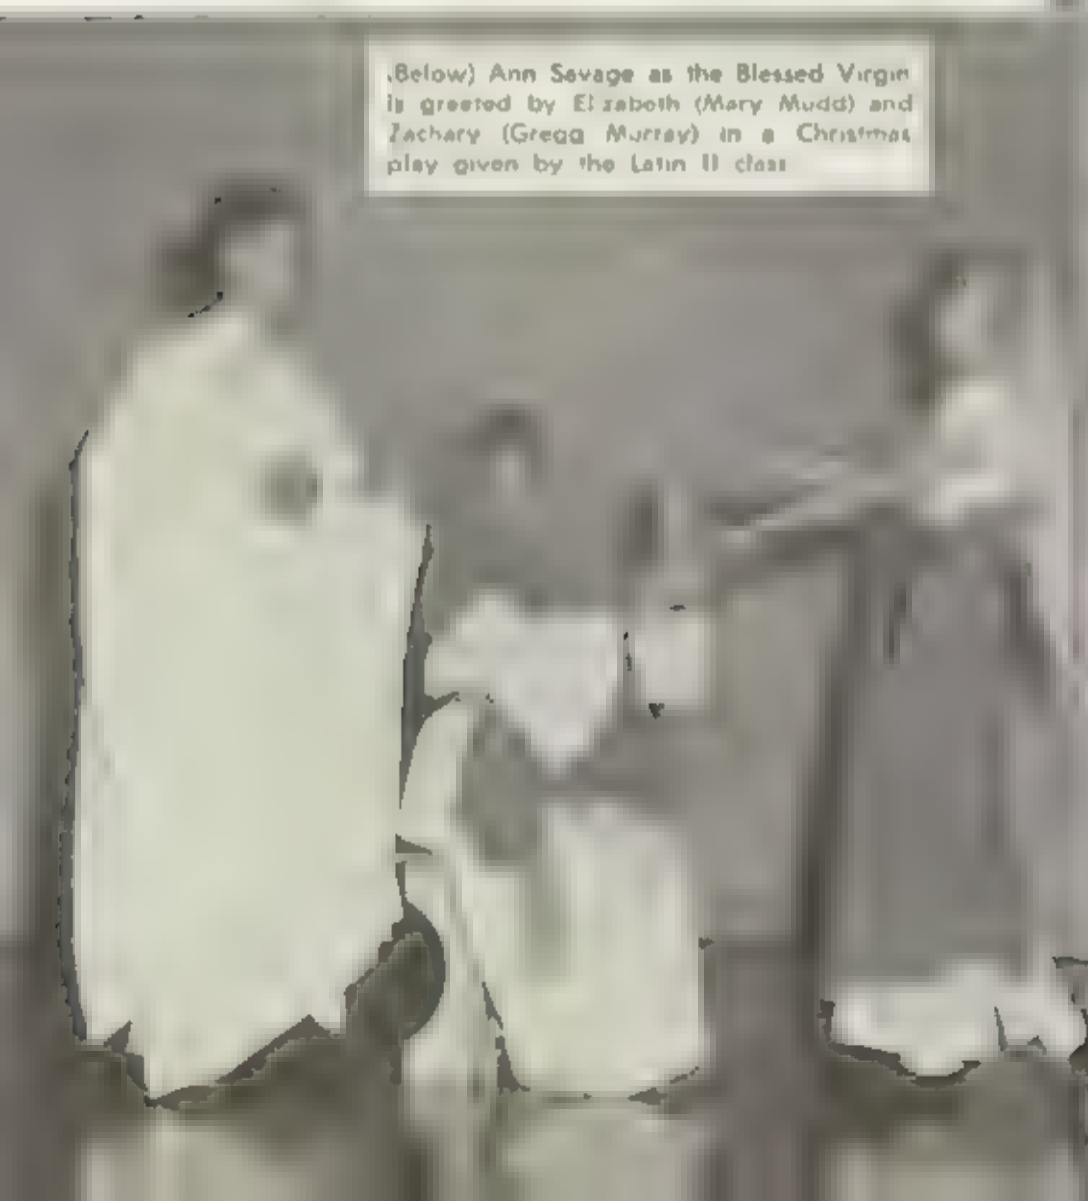

Instead of spears and swords the French class used French songs, records, and magazines to master the new sounds of the language. This small group consider themselves unique if not elite as they were sent to battle forty-five minutes earlier every morning than any of their cohorts.

LATIN II isn't all grand if cheerful smiles mean anything. Martha Pyeatt reads "The Pledge of Allegiance" in Latin as Jim Hopkins, Joan Gibson and Cathy Freeman listen.

Lower right: Hurrah! when Jim Sullivan, Mary Searle, and Phil Sheridan give a hearty cheer as the curtain comes down on a Latin play concerning pagan customs.

Beowulf to Shakespeare. grammar to research.

English is the coordinator of all facets of the curriculum. Through this study, one finds the unique means by which he can communicate thoughts on any subject to his fellow man.

Freshmen, under the direction of Sister Mary Mark, O.S.B., have learned the fundamentals of grammar, the art of correct writing. They have become acquainted with various literary forms and have improved their skill in public speaking through giving apologetics speeches in connection with their religion course.

Sophomores have turned the spotlight on the classics, "The Tale of Two Cities" and "Julius Caesar." They have advanced from "Correct Writing" to "Adult Writing" in their study of composition.

Sister Mary Bernadine, O.S.B., has directed juniors in an intensive study of vocabulary and grammatical structure. To survey American Literature has been the goal of their study of literature.

The "cream of the crop" — English Literature, is reserved for seniors. A major project for each student during the first semester was the explication of a passage from "Macbeth." Second semester all the skills of research were concentrated on a study of members of the Catholic Literary Revival.

Wisdom — the proper use of knowledge — is the object of this four year course as it is of all the liberal arts depicted in these pages. It is the goal of each Marquette in the course of time to reap this fruit in abundance.

DICK OLSEN introduces Susan Ward as the next speaker on the agenda. During speeches in English. Interested listeners to the talk on apologetics are Bob Meyrick and Joanne Reidy. What seest thou, Elwood?

The rules of diagramming seem to take on an unsuspected simplicity when demonstrated by English students Carolyn McNally, Eleanor Mead, and Chris Morgan.

Marque staff strives to retain high rating.

"Has anyone seen that picture of the French class?" "Where's my triangle?" "Oh no! I tore Mrs. Clark's picture!" These less professional remarks have broken the busy silence of many a Marque staff meeting this year. Frequent laughter at "prizewinning" photos such as one of the ceiling of an auditorium, or the photographer's left foot, shrieks of horrors as a staff member who has trimmed too much off a picture prepares to jump off the fire escape. These, too, have made Marque life more interesting.

Under the direction of Sister Mary Bernadine, O.S.B., the staff members who have miraculously survived these difficulties have become quite adept at some, if not all, facets of yearbook work from copy writing to layout and business management. They hope to recapture an A-plus rating from NSYA and, naturally, from the student body!

I think the picture should be slanted, says Nadine Salinas (far right), as she looks dubiously at a picture held by Betty Frampton. Other layout workers, Lee Anne Clements, Loretta Ford, and Richard Gooch, study the situation intently.

Meteors started the season off as under-dogs to Dewey, but showed their true form in a hard fought 14-6 victory. Their next opponent, highly ranked Heavener, handed them a 46-8 defeat. Marquette next battled O.M.A. to a 6-6 tie, bringing the Meteors record to 1-1-1. Two defeats were in store for the Meteors in their first conference games: St. Gregory's 20-0, McGuinness High 30-14. Marquette then regained its early season form and posted four straight victories: St. Mary's 35-8, Central B 35-0, Cascia Hall 12-2, and Holy Family 44-30. These last two victories over Cascia and Holy Family gave the Meteors the City Championship for the second straight year.

Marquette's junior varsity basketball team wound up with a 5-15 win-loss record this season. This year's team was paced in the scoring column by John Ryan who scored 115 points. He was followed by junior Bill "Dart" Daugherty and sophomore Joe Dickmann who made 80 and 60 points respectively. Freshman Phil Sheridan tallied 30 points while sophomore Joe Hills added 20.

The junior Meteors' big victory was over St. Mary's of Oklahoma City, by the score of 30-20. St. Mary's had won the previous game by the score of 21-16.

Skits, decorations manifest spirit.

What's that you say?" Elen Mannas, pep squad secretary, has some difficulty hearing orders from president Jo Ann Edmiston.

The pride and joy of Marquette High School is her pep squad, made up of girls who are always ready to yell for a victory. Trim and pert in blue and white, the girls accompany the football, basketball, and baseball teams through snow and sunshine.

Senior pepsters spent hours preparing assembly skits ranging from "Gunsmoke" to "Heavenly Days" to stir the Meteors to victory — at least a moral victory. On a few occasions juniors decorated the school in blue and white to such a degree that the danger of losing one's spirits on the day of the game became a near impossibility.

So — "we're with you, team, fight!"

Panel discussion, lecture series, civic

THIS is the work of the press. Can it be said that the press is the best and most reliable source of information? Panel discussion.

Marquettiers have had many opportunities for broadening the avenues of their social and cultural life this year.

The senior girls had a special treat in store for them during their study of Macbeth. As part of an assignment, Betty Brampton presented in modern dance form her version of Lady Macbeth in the play. The movements of the dance strongly expressed the feelings and mood of this character.

Early in the year the senior girls conducted a panel discussion for the girls of the parish in which was to answer any questions they might have concerning the rules and regulations of Marquette and discuss Christian young women should set for themselves on campus and off.

Later in the year, it was the privilege of many Marquettiers to attend a lecture and demonstration of the Mass given by Msgr. Martin B. Hellriegel of St. Louis.

Through the generosity of Mr. T. Austin Gavin ten membership cards to the Civic Music Association were made available to Marquette students. Related to this group the membership made it possible for a good number to enjoy fine programs of vocal solo and piano.

"Animasquerade."

Elephants, monkeys, dogs, and rabbits adorned the Topaz Room on January 31 when the junior class presented "Animasquerade." Reigning over the confetti and balloon filled hall of gay Marquettters were Queen Janet Ries and King Maurice Villareal who with the other members of the royal party had been chosen by their classes to rule over the occasion. After the royal waltz other couples donned their sequinned masks and joined the fun. This year's Mardi Gras — "Animasquerade" — will be long remembered for its originality

Speech class presents

As a sure sign of the approaching holidays and holy days, the girls' speech class, under the direction of Sister M. Dolores, O S B, presented an inspiring Christmas choral reading and tableau, entitled "To You a Savior." It presented the story of the Virgin's appearance on earth at the time of the Incarnation and of apparitions in La Salette, Guadalupe, Lourdes, and Fatima. # Theory, student teaching, festival claim

The appreciation of beauty — the joy found in true art — is instilled as an essential part of highschool education. At Marquette one important phase of this development is music.

Theory has been offered to freshmen and mixed chorus to upper classmen. As part of their theory work, the freshmen under the guidance of Sr. Mary Bernadine, O S B., taught a processional hymn to the grade school classes. Going out in pairs, the students discovered that quite a challenge lies in teaching.

In the spring, choral members participated in the music festival of the eastern half of the diocese. The program was presented April 17 at the municipal auditorium under the direction of Mr. George Skapski and Mr. Byron Mitchell. The year's work was closed with a concert presented for students, parents, and friends.

Underclassmen get acquainted with old-timers

As school got fully underway this year the freshmen were cordially welcomed to Marquette by the seniors at the annual barn dance.

The seniors took great pride in the atmosphere created by several gay looking scare-crows, stacks of hay, and all the conveniences of a true barnyard. The students gladly shed their school clothes and came dressed in their gayest glad rags. Perry Reeder and Joanne Beshara, Jim Rucker and Kathy Shields were voted "tackiest of the lacky" — royalty for the evening!

LEE ANNE CLEMENTS and Betty Frampton put the finishing touches on the dummy for an annual barn dance. Isn't he charming?

 THE STAGE...

running—from conferences to cooking.

Much careful behind-the-scenes planning on the part of both faculty and students makes for an efficiently run school. Sister M. Imelda, for example, among her many duties as a principal and teacher, finds that of arranging and supervising parent-teacher conferences. Dependable students prove indispensable in carrying out more serious projects such as this as well as their dances, assemblies, and parties.

Custodians, Leo Rodriguez, and Herbert Manuel, keep the building sparkling clean and well heated, while Mrs. Gillard, Mrs. Slater, and Mrs. Bright help keep up the school morale with their culinary talents.

All together, this very necessary but seldom seen work keeps the school operating smoothly — from conference room to kitchen.

"Very elevating, this work!" says Mr. Leo Rodriguez, custodian, as he grins for the photographer.

What will it be for tomorrow? Mrs. Lily Gillard asks Mrs. June Slater and Mrs. Nellis Bright what should be prepared for tomorrow's hungry Marquettians.

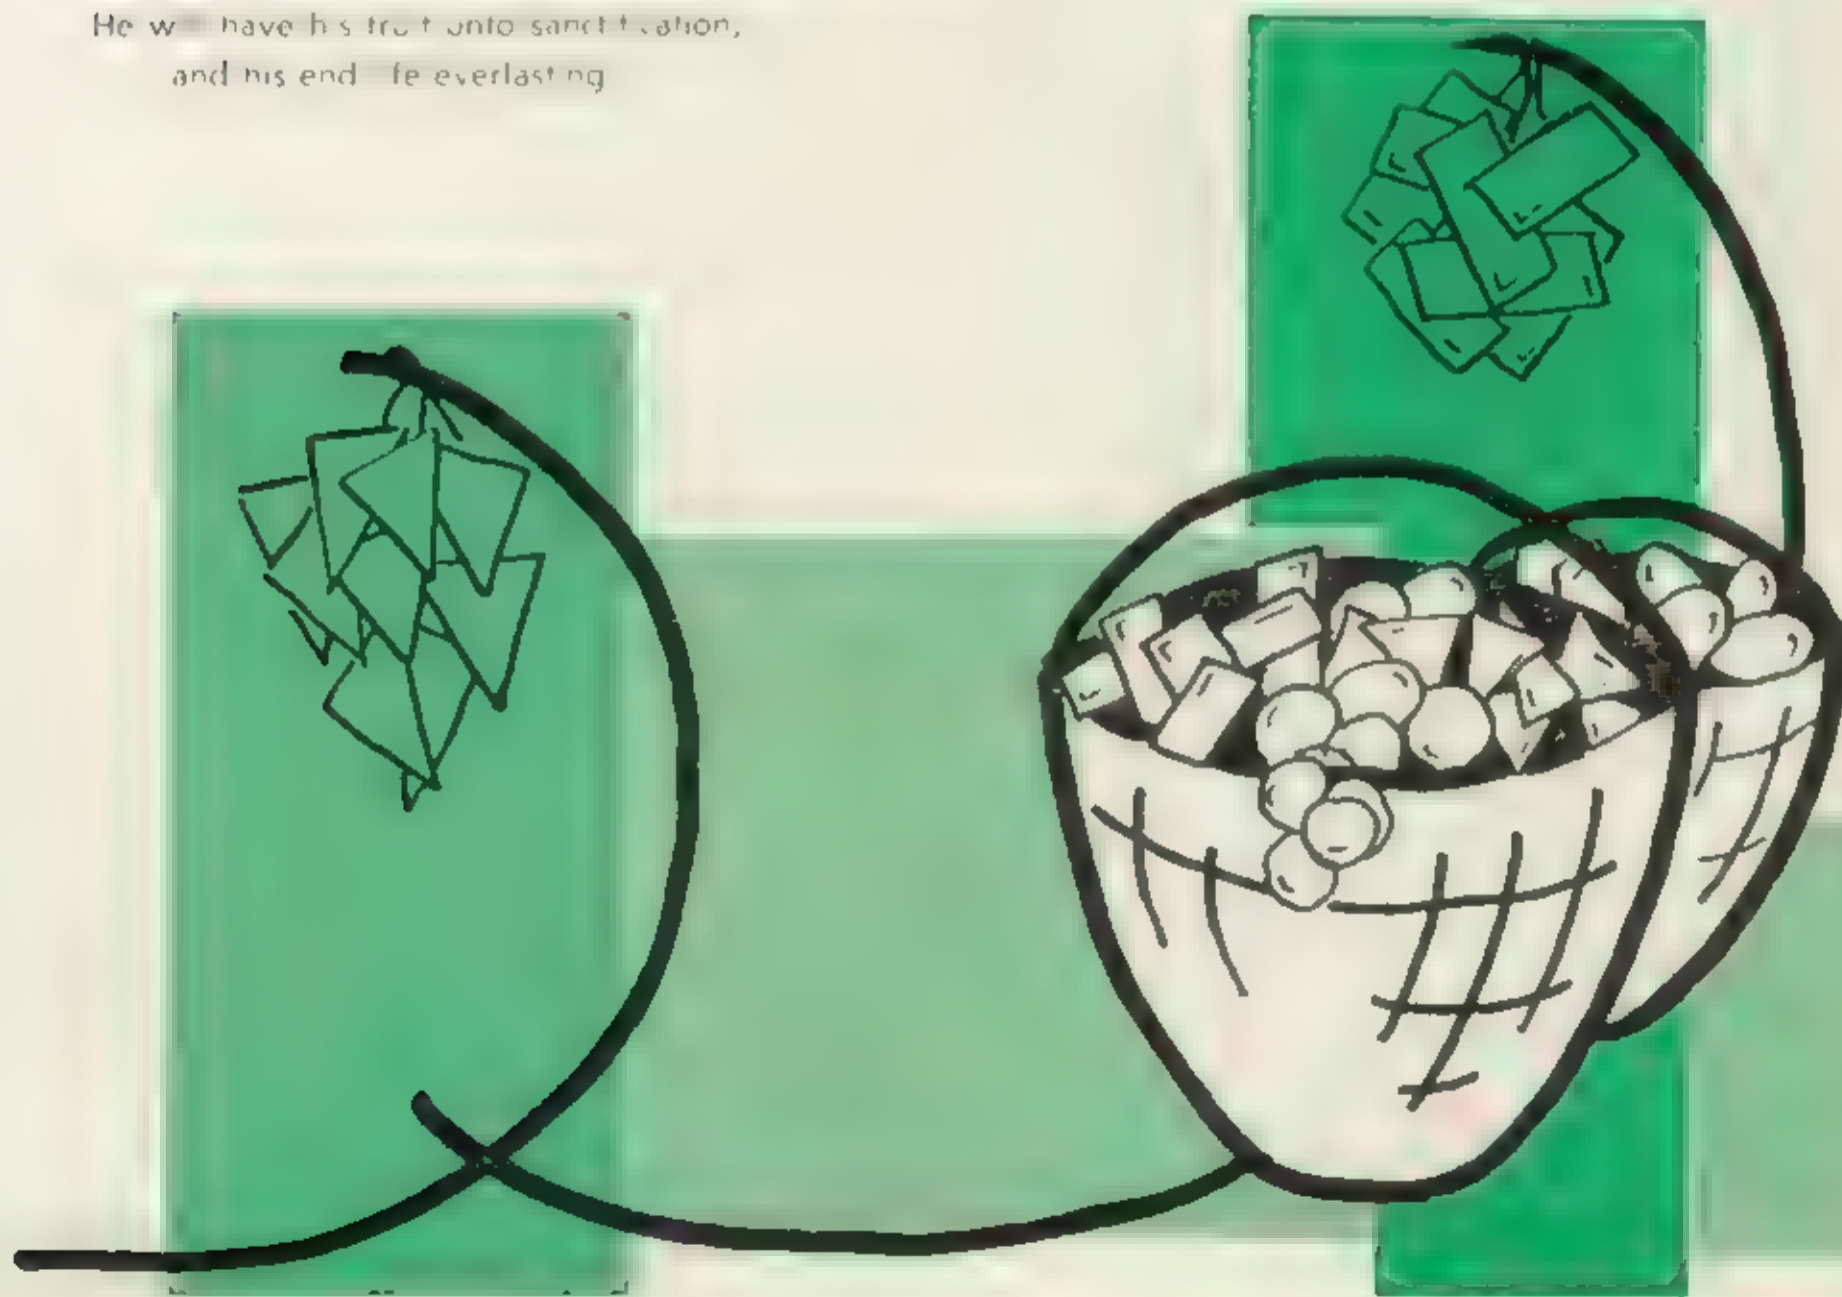

COMING UP In the world, Mr. Herbert Manuel, assistant custodian makes his way up from leaf-filled depths.

AND EVERY GRADUATE

THAT BRINGS FORTH FRUIT

I will purge him that he may bring forth more fruit
Through sacramental bonds of parenthood
Through sacred ordination and consecrated virginity
Through single-seeked dedication among the laity
He will have his fruit unto sanctification, and his end life everlasting

Mike Hank and Dave apparently believe in some of President John's most widely known statements.

I am sure you are doing well and that you are happy. I hope you are happy and content.

Dear Perry,
You are a really nice person. (Especially on a date.) Please stay, real sweet. See you at J.U.

Love
J

Dear Perry,
We are a great team (singing chorus). Lots of hugs in the future.

I every have my little little sister buddy. Your a swell kid Perry and I'm sure we'll have a blast during senior week little hell!

Perry
I think you are one of the sweetest, nice-est, cutest seniors boy, I know, and I know them all Love ya

Dear Buddy,
 I don't really speak to you but this is a great note and your family just friends; but Buddy
 M. Bernhardt

Dear Buddy.
 Although you have lots of buddies & I have lots of buddies I think you are the best buddy I ever had.
 You really are the bestest guy I know.

Buddy
 I really don't know what to say being as how we kinda drifted in our friendship in our senior year but we did have fun last year in study hall. ~~at~~

Dear Perry,
 Well guys we have really had alot of fun the past few years.
 You a very sweet (scab) guy and I really think alot of you I want to wish you the very best of luck in your future years. May God Bless you in everything you do.

Love, Helen

Butch,
 To the absolutely craziest boy ever.
 I sure enjoy your company. You would have to ask my girl.
 I think you are really responsible for getting them some together. Thanks a lot Best of luck always

Reuch
 (I hate to lift)
 we have had lots of fun in our many years of school together and I sure wish that it didn't have to end now but it does. Maybe we can find time to have fun again sometime Lots of luck
 L.D.

Perry,
 It was great doing all the things we did this year.
 I'm glad to have been in the same graduating class. I hope your lunch always holds out as good as this year.
 Johnny D.

Dear Perry
 You are a real sweet guy. Lots of luck.
 Love
 Regina

I say Butch, I sure hate to see you go. You're the only one in the senior class I can really talk to. Don't forget me. I sure won't forget you. I hope which we could do it again. Well we will do it.

Butch,
 I happen to hate you But really you are a really sweet kid. He! He! so really I sure am glad you are leaving best of luck always
